Karayaka, whose fat spreads on its body without accumulating in the tail, is a delicious and highly productive breed. We strive to maintain the existence of Karayaka, which cannot survive in environments other than plateau conditions, by preserving its purity in the region.

Our everyday strive is to bring "natural" meat products to your home which its sources and ethics are not only transparent, yet also traceable. Especially in a period when traditional and native livestock breeding is at the point of extinction on a global scale.

For the sake of today and tomorrow, our tasks involve reviving, continuing and strengthening our grandparents' culture with the same traditions, methods and integrity they animals in the highlands of the Black Sea for centuries long.

We proved that food can be additive - free while still being delicious and healthy. By not using any additives during the production phase for all our food items, we make them safe for all demographics to enjoy. For further peace of mind, we regularly assess our food in a laboratory environment from microbiological reproduction tests to nitrite analysis.

Our milk products with high natural fat and protein ratio come from cows and buffaloes calling the Kizilirmak Delta home - all without being exposed to antibiotics, additives or preservatives.

Our aim for our milk product line is parallel to the model we have adapted for our red meat products - developing our small scale producers by creating socio-economic value, geographical recognition - by providing on-site industry related education and animal care by our university and government partners.
